More than just the Outback

Far West NSW encompasses semi-arid lands, ranges and rivers that encapsulate vast beauty and tranquility.

When we visualise the Great Australian Outback, we picture rich, red deserts and rolling sand dunes. However, there are many hidden secrets in the heart of the outback that depict the diversity that the environment truly embodies.

In the Far West you can experience remarkably rugged bush land whilst simultaneously observing phenomenal, untouched beauty.

Address: 1 Racecourse Road, Broken Hill, NSW

When we picture a golf course in the desert, red dirt and rolling tumble weeds immediately come to mind.

However, nestled in between picturesque hills on the outskirts of Broken Hill is a championship golf course unlike anywhere else in the outback.

You can enjoy a golfing experience like no other on luscious, green fairways that contrast against rugged bush land and you'll never be alone as it is not uncommon for the local wildlife to watch on as locals and tourists take to the course.

Menindee Lakes

Located approximately 110 kilometres south-east of Broken Hill, the Menindee Lakes are a series of water catchments along the Darling River. The lakes can hold three and half times as much water as Sydney Harbour when full.

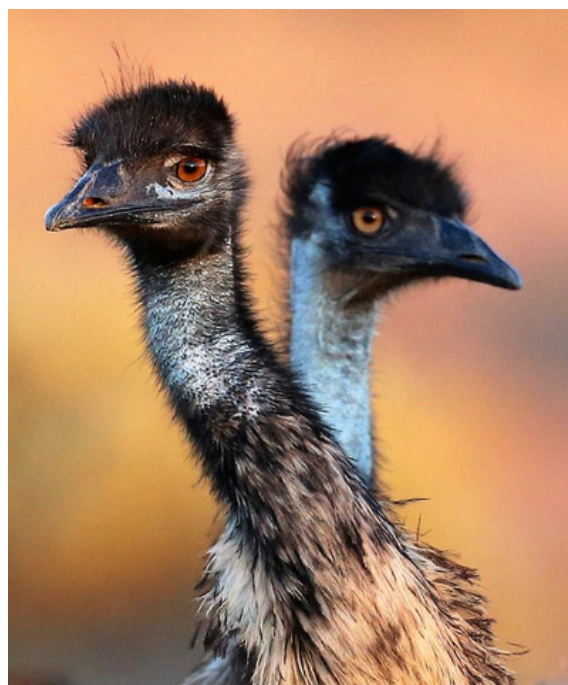

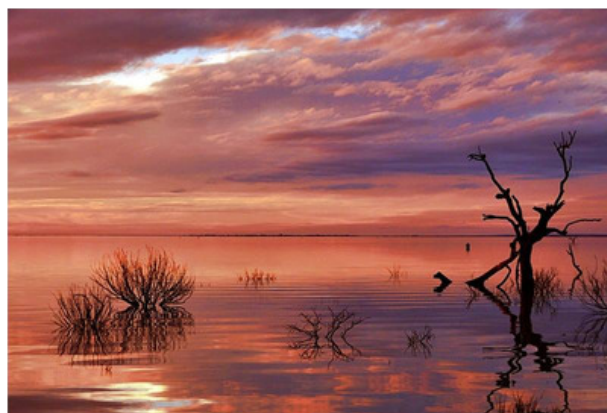

Whether your interests consist of relaxing on the river bank, setting up camp or cruising the waterways, the Menindee Lakes provide the perfect getaway.

The thriving natural environment fosters a large variety of native wildlife, supporting up to 222,000 water birds. This area, along the Darling River, is recognised as one of the finest freshwater fishing spots in New South Wales.

"A photographers dream"

Mundi Mundi Plains

The Mundi Mundi Plains are located approximately 5 kilometres north-west of the iconic community, Silverton. The plains are well known for their extraordinarily picturesque sunsets and the backdrop they have provided to numerous iconic Australians films and series, such as Mad Max and A Town Like Alice.

It is argued that the Mundi Mundi Plains are one of the few locations in the world that you can see the curvature of the earth. The vast beauty that the plains embody must be seen it to be believed.

"Open space, as far as the eye can see"
